Breakout: First Panzer Army & Kamenets-Podolsky, March–April 1944

Germany's Army Group South was reeling in the late winter of 1944. Soviet offensives had forced rapid retreats and occasionally trapped large numbers of German troops. One of these traps occurred in the western Ukraine in March 1944 when an entire German army was surrounded.

British Pacific Fleet 1944–45

In late 1944 the British War Cabinet sent a Royal Navy task force to assist operations in the Pacific. While unfamiliar with operating ships so far from a home base, they skillfully organized and deployed a fleet to conduct operations in early 1945.

The US Army Corps of Military Police in World War II

With the outbreak of war in Europe, the creation of a military police corps became a necessity for the US Army. The military police proved their worth during the war guarding POWs, protecting vital supply chains, investigating black market racketeering, and even participating in the Nuremburg Trials.

German Annihilation War Planning and Implementation

Hitler's racist and destructive worldview would shape the planning of Operation Barbarossa and lead to the loss of millions of innocent lives in Eastern Europe.
